Sobriety in suspension

The body structure of Third is divided into three equal parts, two of which make up the head stamped in lacquered steel and the third part is a diffusing shade carved in ash. The light distribution of this pendant lamp is focused and generates a halo of subtle light. Like the head, the base fixed to the ceiling is also made of matte black lacquered steel. The sobriety with which it hangs in spaces and the conflicting asymmetry of its combination of materials make it very attractive for architects and interior designers.
